

From Concept to Completion

Our specialist workplace furniture division was recently responsible for the office fit-out for Accelonix.

The case study below showcases how we helped them make the transition to their new modern office space – with a focus on encouraging collaboration and inspiring their employees through aesthetic appeal.

✔ Enhanced aesthetics

✔ Collaborative

✔ An inspiring space

BRIEF

Accelonix wanted an enhanced office redesign they could show off to clients, while creating an environment that inspired employees.

The project had specific needs: including a formal boardroom, an open-plan collaborative workspace, a flexible meeting area for brainstorming, easy-chair zones for discussions, and a focus on wellbeing.

THE CHALLENGE

Accelonix had a competitor's quote with excessively high proposed installation costs, so asked our team to deliver a high-quality design within their budget.

They wanted unique arrangements to fill the spaces, creating multipurpose areas combining functionality and aesthetic appeal.

Matt Allaby, our Head of Furniture, took the client to Clerkenwell to select final fabrics and products. From the initial concept to completion, the vision remained perfectly aligned.

THE PROCESS

We identified inefficiencies and proposed cost-effective alternatives that aligned with the client's requests. The design team refined the space and suggested reconfigurable furniture for maximum flexibility.

Bespoke pieces were created to provide comfort and the client's desired modern style. We then sourced durable and sustainable materials at competitive prices.

Throughout, we ensured the client's vision remained at the forefront. We efficiently coordinated the installation, minimising disruption. The result was a space that not only fulfilled the client's functional requirements but also reflected their unique style, all while staying on budget and schedule.

✔ Warm and inviting

✔ Blended multi-purpose zones

✔ Collaborative

THE RESULTS

The design blended professional furniture with soft furnishings, creating an inviting environment that both employees and clients appreciated.

The open-plan design facilitated collaboration while providing individual focus zones, and the multi-use meeting space was flexible enough to transform from a brainstorming space to a formal presentation area when needed.
